WELCOME FROM THE DEAN

Undertaking a degree requires dedication, hard work, and self-discipline. It also requires innovative and creative thinking. But you won’t be doing it alone. The dedicated staff in our College are here to support you and we hope we will make a unique contribution to your studies. Doing a degree is a wonderful opportunity and it is important that you not only make the most of it but that you also enjoy it. I’m sure you’ll find staff and fellow students who inspire you along your road of discovery.

This guide provides you with useful advice and tips to assist and help you choose your degree from our exciting, innovative and career-focused suite of programs. Our career compass (page 10) will help you navigate the endless career possibilities that an arts, humanities and social science degree can lead to.

The commitment to research excellence and prominent global rankings of Academics within the College mean that you will have the opportunity to engage with thought-provoking research throughout your degree. Our National Capital location will allow you to take advantage of our close proximity to iconic national and international institutions, right within easy walking distance of the campus.

Our Accommodation Guarantee will ensure you have a place on campus to call home away from home. You will also have the opportunity to make friends for life, travel for study, and ultimately discover where a degree from Australia’s finest university can take you.

I look forward to welcoming you to ANU.

11 diverse workshops in the School of Art
Diverse workshops are offered in the School of Art, from glass to video animation – choose from our Bachelor of Visual Arts or Bachelor of Design Arts degree, or opt for a Flexible Double Degree™ combination.

More languages than any other Australian university
We offer more languages than any other Australian university, including many that are not offered at any other tertiary institution in Australia, such as Persian, Portuguese and Turkish.

Interns in the Australian Parliament
We are the only university with the right to place interns in the Australian Parliament.

Flexible Double Degree program
In a globalised world with a rapidly evolving job market, it is important for students to be able to choose from a range of disciplines and degree structures to suit their interests, strengths and career goals. You can choose from 750 different combinations in our Flexible Double Degree™ program to make your own tailored program.

10:1 student to staff ratio
The culture of ground-breaking research shapes how our students learn. With an average student-to-staff ratio of 10:1 (the best among the Group of Eight), our students work closely with researchers who are addressing some of the biggest challenges of our time.

50 years
The School of Music has seen over 50 years of rich history. Llewellyn Hall on campus is one of Australia’s finest concert halls, with a capacity of nearly 1400 and features regular performances by staff and students of as well as many visiting orchestras, ensembles and artists.
Our students are adventurous, curious and creative explorers of the world.

We encourage our students to broaden their horizons and gain unique experiences by taking their studies overseas. ANU Travel Grants help students participate in courses not available at ANU but offered at other leading universities around the world, while making new friends, forming networks and immersing themselves in another culture.

Why just study when you can have the adventure of a lifetime?

Exchange programs
At ANU we provide students with opportunities for study at amazing learning destinations around the world. Studying overseas as part of your degree can provide personal and academic rewards, adding value to your ANU experience. ANU Global Programs offers the following benefits:

> Add an international dimension to your ANU degree.
> Broaden your education and participate in courses not offered at ANU.
> Make new friends and form networks around the world.
> Live in another culture while building skills and gaining knowledge to diversify your career options.

The ANU Global Programs student exchange program is open to domestic and international students enrolled in an undergraduate program at ANU.

The College offers opportunities with partner universities including King's College, UK, Konstanz University, Germany, The National University Singapore, and Nanyang Technological University, Singapore.

Australian National Internships Program (ANIP)
The Australian National Internships Program has a broad range of internships for academic credit, giving you a foot in the door even before you graduate.

Internships at your fingertips:

> The National Gallery of Australia
> The National Museum of Australia
> The Australian War Memorial
> Embassies
> Government and non-government departments and agencies

The Washington Internship
ANU has exclusive rights to place 6 interns a year in the United States Congress as part of the Washington Internship Program. The course offers students with a good background in American government and politics an opportunity to experience political life in Washington DC by working in the offices of Members of Congress or on the staff of Congressional committees and then to complete a program of research on a specialised aspect of American government, politics, and public policy.

Tour and study
Visit the great archaeological sites of Italy, Greece or Turkey, live in a rice-farming village in Vietnam, or encounter endangered primates in Cambodia, and earn credit towards your degree at the same time.

Students of our Classical Studies programs have the opportunity to travel as part of their degree to undertake an immersive in-country experience.

Fieldwork
Fieldwork opportunities are available for students studying archaeology, anthropology and biological anthropology wishing to gain in-country experience and hone their exploratory research skills. All study tours and fieldwork opportunities include staff instruction and are for academic course credit.

TOP 5 REASONS TO STUDY
A BACHELOR OF ARTS AT ANU

The Bachelor of Arts is your ticket to exploring your passions and discovering new ones. Find out about the different ways you can structure your Bachelor of Arts on page 16.

Every one of our students is studying their own unique program. You can too!

1. Huge range of choice
   We have nearly 50 majors and over 80 minors to choose from, ranging from History to Criminology, or a language – a veritable smorgasbord of options to complement your varied interests.

2. Flexibility
   Every one of our students is studying their own unique program. The Bachelor of Arts can be combined with almost any other undergraduate degree at ANU in a Flexible Double Degree. As a standalone program, you can structure your Bachelor of Arts in seven different ways and maximise your choice of majors, minors and electives.

3. Only the best will do
   There’s simply nowhere else to study but with the best in your chosen field. Our international academic discipline rankings are in the top 20 in the world and number 1 in Australia.
Skills employers want
No matter what career path you decide to follow, the skills you will gain from an Arts degree will set you up in every profession. Skills include critical thinking, research, oral and written communication, and the ability to understand and explain important complex national and international issues affecting our world today. The Bachelor of Arts will equip you with a range of highly transferable skills that will set you up for every career.

Life experience
At ANU we have opportunities for you to grow as a person and in your studies – both in Canberra and abroad – allowing you to travel on exchange, complete a professional internship, or get your hands dirty and experience real research fieldwork.
WHAT MAKES US SPECIAL?

We offer a suite of programs that are unique and distinctive to give you an edge when you graduate. These include the world-renowned Flexible Double Degrees™, Vertical Double Degrees™ and our Degrees for High Achievers.

Flexible Double degrees

A Flexible Double Degree™ from ANU gives you even more versatility – and two qualifications. Double degrees take less time to complete than two standalone degrees, and they open up even more career opportunities.

You can combine any degree from the ANU College of Arts and Social Sciences with a range of other degrees such as law, commerce, engineering and science, so you can study a vocation while pursuing your passions. The Bachelor of Arts is available for combination within all three Flexible Double Degree groups and is one of the most popular degrees studied as part of a double degree.

Vertical Double degrees

Another choice is to graduate with a Vertical Double Degree™, which combines a versatile undergraduate degree with a professional graduate qualification, setting you up for life.

There are currently three Vertical Double degrees on offer:

> Bachelor of Arts/Master of International Affairs
> Bachelor of Politics, Philosophy and Economics/Juris Doctor
> Bachelor of Asian Studies/Master of Globalisation

See the ‘Degrees’ sections of this guide for more details, or head to programsandcourses.anu.edu.au

Degrees for High Achievers

The Bachelor of Philosophy (Honours) (PhB)

Study at the highest levels with the PhB. You will extend yourself through a number of Advanced Studies courses, designed to equip you with the skills and techniques needed to undertake research. PhB students complete their degree with an Honours year in the Arts discipline of your choice. You’ll even get the flexibility to structure the degree in a way that suits you in consultation with your academic advisor.

If you choose to study the PhB, you are able to apply for a travel grant of up to $1,500 to undertake study abroad.

The Bachelor of Politics, Philosophy and Economics (BPPE)

The Bachelor of Politics, Philosophy and Economics (BPPE) is a well-known and established degree throughout the world. You will gain a grounding in each of the three disciplines equally, then decide which area to focus on further into your degree. Based on the Oxford model, the ANU degree features a unique Integrative Seminar series. Our Integrative Seminar series brings together the three disciplines to illuminate topics of pressing human concern, and students engage as a cohort throughout the duration of their program. Graduates of the PPE degree will have a thoroughly interdisciplinary grounding across politics, philosophy and economics which will set them up for a range of careers across the private and public sector, and leadership roles.
Matthew

Bachelor of Politics, Philosophy and Economics, Tuckwell Scholarship recipient

The Bachelor of Politics, Philosophy and Economics (BPPE) was one of the main reasons behind Matthew’s decision to come to ANU, as well as the scholarship and opportunity to move away from his hometown in Sydney.

“I had never heard about the BPPE until a friend of mine introduced me to it, and after I did some research I realised it was exactly what I wanted,” says Matthew.

“It’s unique in the way it’s taught as three disciplines working together, which is best embodied in the seminar classes, where the disciplines are all meshed together in one synchronised way as opposed to being taught separately. It’s surprised me how much the subjects overlap and work together. The BPPE gives me the flexibility to approach problems from different aspects that you wouldn’t normally study if you were studying just economics, or just politics.”

JuE Wong

Bachelor of Arts (Honours) 1987

President of Elizabeth Arden Brands

JuE was appointed President of Elizabeth Arden Brands in August 2015. She was formerly Chief Executive Officer of StriVectin, a global skin care cosmetics company, and Astral Brands. JuE specialises in turning around ailing companies. She won a 2014 Stevie Award as a Female Executive of the Year. JuE has also served on the board of the American Heart Association and the Atlanta chapter of the YMCA.

Brody Warren

Bachelor of Arts (Political Science, Spanish) / Bachelor of Laws (Hons) 2013

Legal Officer at the Hague Conference on Private International Law

After graduating from the ANU in 2013, Brody stayed in Canberra to continue working as a Sub-Editor at LexisNexis Capital Monitor in the Federal Parliamentary Press Gallery. In March 2014, he travelled to the Netherlands to undertake a six-month internship at the Hague Conference on Private International Law (HCCH) as the 2014 Peter Nygh Intern. After completing the internship, he was offered a permanent position as a Legal Officer at the HCCH, and has resided in The Hague ever since.

Lieutenant-General (Retired) David Morrison, AO
Bachelor of Arts, 1979
Australian of the Year, 2016
Lieutenant-General (Retired) Morrison joined the Army in 1979, after graduating from ANU with a Bachelor of Arts. He went on to serve for 36 years and was Chief of the Army for four years.
During his time as Chief of the Army, and since his retirement in 2015, General Morrison has championed gender equality and diversity, and has worked to help end violence against women and children. His efforts were recognised nationally in January when he was named the 2016 Australian of the Year.

Diane Morris
Bachelor of Arts, 2011
Assistant Manager of Marketing and Communications at The National Portrait Gallery
After graduating from ANU with a Bachelor of Arts (Art History and Curatorship) in 2011, Diane commenced at The Australian War Memorial as an Administration Assistant in the Communications and Marketing team. She was then promoted to Centenary Communications Officer, and further promoted to lead Centenary Communications Officer for the War Memorial’s First World War Centenary Commemorations.
She was solely responsible for developing and launching the Memorial’s Centenary Logo, launching the re-developed First World War Galleries, and managing media and marketing strategies for the Memorial’s centenary program of events and activities.
Diane is now the Assistant Manager of Marketing and Communications at The National Portrait Gallery, responsible for the development and implementation of all of the Portrait Gallery’s marketing and media strategies, development of merchandise, management of the copyright around the collection, and coordination of the social media channels.

OUR FLAGSHIP DEGREE

Bachelor of Arts

ATAR: 80  Duration: 3 years  CRICOS Code: 074016B

The Bachelor of Arts is the most diverse, most flexible, and most popular degree at ANU. Each of its nearly fifty majors, in fields throughout the arts, humanities and social sciences, is taught by truly outstanding scholars to ensure that each student receives the very best education, is engaged with cutting-edge research, and learns to think like a researcher. These majors can be coupled with more than eighty minors to broaden or deepen your study. Regardless of your choices, your Arts degree will provide you with core skills in critical analysis and written and oral communication, whilst developing your adaptability and ability to shape change and prepare you for a multifaceted career or further study.

The Bachelor of Arts can be combined with all other ANU undergraduate degrees except the PhB as a Flexible Double Degree and can also be studied as part of a Vertical Double Degree with the Master of International Affairs.

ART HISTORY, VISUAL AND DESIGN ARTS

Turn your artistic passion into a qualification from the ANU School of Art. Through our artist-in-residence program and our strong connections to cultural institutions and prestigious international art schools, you won’t just be a student, you’ll become part of ANU and Canberra’s renowned artistic community.

Bachelor of Art History & Curatorship

| ATAR: 80 | Duration: 3 years | CRICOS Code: 073993E |

If you’re considering a life immersed in the art world, in galleries and museums, then this is the degree for you.

The ANU Bachelor of Art History and Curatorship bridges the theoretical side of art history as a university discipline and the practicalities of curating for the public. The degree covers curatorship, Australian and Indigenous art, Asian art and international art.

ANU enjoys close links with the National Gallery of Australia, National Library of Australia, the Australian War Memorial and the National Portrait Gallery. These links ensure that you have good access to major national collections for the entirety of your degree, can combine academic excellence with a strong vocational emphasis, and remain at the forefront of current research in the art museum sector. You also gain practical experience with some of the world’s most exciting cultural institutions during your selected internship.

Majors
- Art History

Minors

Career opportunities
- Art history and curatorship has a strong career orientation. Many of our graduates have taken up key positions in art galleries, museums and other cultural institutions.

Bachelor of Design Arts

| Entry based on interview/portfolio | Duration: 3 years | CRICOS Code: 073986D |

The ANU Bachelor of Design Arts is a practical, media-based degree which prepares you for a career as a professional designer-maker.

You will develop the knowledge and skills for independent practice and to undertake collaborative projects as a creative professional. This degree emphasises the role of studio-based craft and design-led thinking as a key driver of innovation in social, cultural, technological and commercial realms. You will also be trained in the use of current digital technology for design development, fabrication and promotion.

Emerging from the School’s established craft and design programs, new fields of learning include data visualisation, the designed environment, digital prototyping and entrepreneurial design making. Students will be equipped to engage with emerging research and business practices with an emphasis on skills combined with creative and original concepts. The School of Art has specific entry requirements that include an interview and portfolio. For more information visit soa.anu.edu.au/how-apply

- Graduates may find work as independent designers, art teachers, in galleries or museums, commercial enterprise and many other fields.
This practical degree allows you to develop new ways of creating and thinking which aids in your development as an artist. The ANU School of Art offers the following discipline studio based study in Ceramics, Furniture, Glass, Gold and Silversmithing, Painting, Photography, Animation and Video, Printmedia and Drawing, Sculpture, and Textiles. Together with the School’s Art History and Art Theory programs they culminate in deep and broad leaning. This student experience is enhanced with a culture that supports domestic and international field trips, environment studies, internships at major institutions, international student exchanges and artist residencies on campus at the School of Art.

You can choose to major in animation and video, ceramics, furniture, glass, gold and silversmithing, painting, photomedia, print media and drawing, sculpture, and textiles.

The School of Art has specific entry requirements that include completion of an interview and portfolio. For more information visit soa.anu.edu.au/how-apply

Janis

Bachelor of Visual Arts (Hons)

For his Visual Arts Honours, Janis created an artwork that comprised columns of light which changed colour based on data from computer programs he’d written. Each column represented a different stream of data – from the content of tweets, porn searches or Instagram photos.

Janis explains, “It’s about the relationships we have in an increasingly networked world to this sea of intangible data which is increasingly defining who we are and how we engage with things.”
Bachelor of Archaeological Practice

ATAR: 80
Duration: 3 years
CRICOS Code: 073983G

Archaeology unlocks the mysteries of humanity’s past. Archaeologists discover and excavate archaeological sites and interpret the material recovered from them. Our well-regarded degree is specifically designed to prepare you for a successful career in archaeology, either as a researcher or heritage consultant.

You will be trained in methods of archaeological investigation and develop both applied and technical skills involving fieldwork and analysis. Throughout the ANU Bachelor of Archaeological Practice you will undertake fieldwork to real excavation and archaeological sites, as well as having exciting opportunities to participate in local or international fieldwork experiences.

Majors

Archaeological Practice

Specialisations: As part of your program, you will complete two specialisations. Choose from Environmental Archaeology, Forensic and Evolutionary Archaeology and Regional Archaeology.

Career opportunities

Graduates may find work in Commonwealth heritage agencies, national parks, mining companies, as independent consultants, advisors to Aboriginal Land councils and many other fields.

Bachelor of Classical Studies

ATAR: 80
Duration: 3 years
CRICOS Code: 073984F

Delve into the classical world of Greece and Rome through a variety of disciplines at Australia’s leading university. You will study broadly across the field of classical antiquity, defined as the Greco-Roman world from the Aegean Bronze Age (3rd millennium BC) to the transition from late antiquity to the early medieval period (500 AD).

Our program ensures that you gain an understanding of the whole period, plus a focus of your choosing and at least one of the classical languages (Ancient Greek or Latin). This flexible program also gives you access to other disciplines such as archaeology or art history.

You will be encouraged to take part in an overseas study course in Italy, Greece or Turkey. You will experience the classical world and visit archaeological sites and key museums, all as part of an approved course counting towards your degree.

Majors

Ancient Greek, Ancient History, Latin

Minors

You will also be required to complete a minor, which must be a different discipline to the major: Ancient History, Ancient Greek, and Latin

Career opportunities

Graduates may find work in teaching, research, historical societies, translation, the public service, trade, tourism, museums and many other exciting fields.

QS World University Rankings by Faculty 2015-16
Development Studies focuses on the challenge of inequality and the industry of promoting economic growth and human development in less-developed regions of the world. The Bachelor of Development Studies comprises a multidisciplinary approach with the core courses in anthropology, political science, and sociology examining the policies, theories and practices of development agents and the response of development participants.

In this degree you will gain a critical understanding of theory and practice concerning the processes of development in the ‘developing world’, with the opportunity to study forms of development in specific regions of the world, such as Southeast Asia, East Asia, Latin America and the Pacific.

ANU is the leader in the field of Development Studies in Australia and is ranked 8th in the world in this field. It has built its reputation around research and undergraduate/postgraduate education and has established strong relationships with Australian and international aid and development organisations.

Melandri

Bachelor of Arts, Major in Archaeological Practice

“ANU stood out as the best program available in archaeology and biological anthropology. The fact that I lived in the Canberra area only made it more of a definite choice.

I have always been interested in history and science and decided from a young age that I wanted to become an archaeologist.

As I grew older I found an interest in forensics and ended up choosing a degree that allowed me to study and pursue all my interests.”

Bachelor of Development Studies

¿que quisiera hacer? Deutsch? Latinum? Nihongo?

The ANU Bachelor of Languages prepares you to thrive in our increasingly multilingual and international age. Your language education experience is designed to engage you with the linguistic features of your chosen language or languages contextualised in terms of the culture and history of the regions in which it is spoken.

You can choose from 17 language majors: Ancient Greek, Arabic, Chinese (Mandarin), French, German, Hindi, Indonesian, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Latin, Persian, Sanskrit, Spanish, Thai, Urdu and Vietnamese. Elective courses are available in additional languages including Russian, Burmese, Javanese, Portuguese, Tetum and Turkish.

Exciting opportunities exist for you to immerse yourself in your chosen language and culture through study abroad. With our flexible program you can also extend other minor language subjects into a major.

So what are you waiting for? Allons nous!

Diploma of Languages

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>ATAR: 80</th>
<th>Duration: Part time only</th>
<th>CRICOS Code: N/A</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

Apply direct to ANU College of Arts & Social Sciences

The Diploma of Languages prepares students for the increasingly multilingual and international life of the 21st century. You will be taken on a language learning journey which is designed to engage you with the written, oral and cultural aspects of your chosen language or languages.

You can choose to study a wide selection of languages, many of which are not available at any other university in Australia. The languages available are Ancient Greek, Arabic, Chinese (Mandarin), Classical Chinese, French, German, Hindi, Indonesian, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Latin, Persian, Russian, Sanskrit, Spanish, Thai, Urdu and Vietnamese.

Note

You can only study the diploma on a part-time basis. The diploma must be studied alongside a current degree or, if you have a previous degree, as a ‘stand-alone’ program. If you have previous knowledge of a language, you may be able to complete an Advanced Minor in that language, and do another minor in an additional language to complete the diploma.

Career opportunities

Graduates may find work in international relations, diplomacy, trade, national security and strategy, translation, language teaching, tourism, development and many other fields.
Ruohan

Bachelor of Arts (German)/Bachelor of Laws (Hons)

An interest in German that started in high school has already taken Ruohan Zhao to Berlin and Freiburg.

“When I finished high school, I still didn’t feel like I’d mastered German yet, and I wanted to take it to an academic level at university,” says Ruohan.

It was the ability to combine German with a Bachelor of Laws, that prompted Ruohan to make the move to Canberra from Auckland, New Zealand.

In 2014, Ruohan headed to Germany for a semester-long exchange at Freiburg University, after six weeks of language training in Berlin, an experience she says was “like falling in love with Germany, their language and their culture all over again”.

Among the highlights of her trip was watching the Soccer World Cup with her fellow students.
Music

The ANU School of Music offers more one-to-one tuition than any other comparable undergraduate program in Australia. Whether you’re a connoisseur of classical, jazz, contemporary or world music, our world-class teachers will start you on your journey to becoming a music professional. You’ll also have the opportunity to learn in our new industry-standard production studio, offering access to state-of-the-art music technology.

Bachelor of Music

| ATAR: 80 | Duration: 3 years | CRICOS Code: 073990G |

You can turn your musical talent into a remarkable career. The ANU Bachelor of Music prepares you for a career as a modern music professional, and is designed to reflect music as it is understood and practiced in contemporary Australian society. All students receive a broad core training in music theory and aural skills, and an overview of the historical and social context of music with a focus on music since 1900. You will specialise in one of our four majors – performance; composition, arranging and sound design; music technology; or musicology – in one or more genres (classical, jazz, contemporary, popular, or world music). Single degree students may choose two majors.

Applicants will be expected to have pre-existing musical knowledge such as a competency level equivalent to NSW Music 2 or Music Extension, or AMEB Grade 5 theory, or equivalent qualifications or experience. In addition, 5 bonus points are available to applicants who have passed AMEB Grade 8 or equivalent.

Audition requirements apply for the Music Performance courses, however entry to the degree itself is determined by the ATAR cut-off. For more information visit music.anu.edu.au/future-students/apply

Majors

- Composition, Arranging and Sound Design
- Music Performance
- Music Technology
- Musicology

Career opportunities

Students graduate with a range of professional skills that are applicable to careers in performance, music education, music advocacy, academic research, music entrepreneurship, and digital media and technology. This is particularly advantageous given that musicians increasingly are required to exercise a wide range of skills including performer, teacher, cultural entrepreneur, arts manager, music technologists and scholar.
Hugo

Bachelor of Music/Bachelor of Science

I’m studying a Bachelor of Music/Bachelor of Science - majoring in saxophone performance and physics. It has been fascinating working with (INXS keyboardist and HC Coombs Fellow) Andrew Farriss – hearing his stories and approaches to writing and arranging music. He has so much knowledge and experience in the music industry that goes far beyond just playing music, something that is crucial to the modern-day musician. This year I have written, recorded and produced my new album, Confluence, for which Andrew has played a significant mentoring role. It was great to have someone with his wealth of ideas willing to listen to mine, from short musical fragments to finished works, and offer constructive criticism at all times. One of my favourite spots on campus is the small grass peninsula with willow trees, sticking into Sullivan’s Creek from South Oval. I like it because it is so calm and peaceful – a beautiful spot with the plants and water birds. It is a perfect place to sit and think, or just sit. If I were free for an afternoon, I’d go for a run up and around Black Mountain with my mates. We do this a lot and it’s heaps of fun, good catch-up time, very relaxing, and apparently not too bad for your health either.

In the future I’ll be continuing my original composition/production projects as well as performing as a session player in many different bands. It would be great to travel around some more and broaden my experience and networks in the industry.

I’m also working on fusing the disciplines of Music and Physics with exciting opportunities ahead. Possibly postgraduate study at some stage too.
BACHELOR OF PHILOSOPHY (HONS)

From day one Bachelor of Philosophy (Honours) (PhB) students work with an academic advisor to craft a program structure that allows focused, in-depth research on the topics they’re passionate about.

Bachelor of Philosophy (Honours)

| ATAR: 99 | Duration: 4 years | CRICOS Code: 048427K |

The Bachelor of Philosophy (Honours) (PhB) is an exciting research-focused degree at ANU. It is an integrated program leading to an Honours award. It is designed for intellectually ambitious students who aspire to study at the highest level. Every student receives intensive individual attention from academic advisors.

The PhB is flexible in its structure with your program determined each year in collaboration with your academic advisor. One quarter of your studies in the first three years will consist of individually-tailored advanced studies courses specifically designed to provide you with a strong base in research. In these courses, you might do a reading course or literature review with an academic. In the fourth year you will undertake an Honours year centred around one College of Art and Social Sciences discipline.

A strict quota will apply to enrolments in this degree program. A wide range of scholarships is available to potential applicants. If you choose to undertake study abroad, you might be eligible to apply for a travel grant of up to $1,500.

Bachelor of Philosophy (Honours)/Bachelor of Arts (Honours) (National University of Singapore)

| ATAR: 99 | Duration: 4 years | CRICOS Code: 058580G |

This joint program will allow you to study at two world-renowned universities. You can choose from four available majors in this highly selective program which provides students with ambitious and intellectual challenges. These include English, history, political science, or philosophy.

This integrated program is offered in partnership with The Australian National University and the National University of Singapore (NUS) and will lead to an Honours award upon completion. You will have significant flexibility and can tailor your program of study in close consultation with your individual program coordinator.

Majors

Career opportunities

Graduates may find work in publishing, policy, education, international development, politics, media, research fields, journalism, aid, advertising and many other fields.
AJ

Bachelor of Philosophy (Hons)/Diploma of Languages

The Bachelor of Philosophy is by no means your average degree. As a third year PhB student AJ America can attest, you can exercise a high level of autonomy within it and work closely with lecturers.

In Year 12, AJ took the HSC History Extension course, which she describes as a very self-directed research project.

“I really enjoyed the process of research and the process of letting a project take shape over a few months rather than just having a set essay question that you respond to in the three weeks that you have to write the paper,” AJ says. “The opportunity to keep doing that regularly was really enticing.”

For her first research project at ANU, AJ worked alongside an academic whose books she had admired – historian Angela Woollacott.

“It was my second year of university and I was sitting in her office getting to discuss my work every week and chat to her about history. Eighteen months earlier, I’d been reading her books when I was in high school,” AJ enthuses.

“I’ve also been privileged to work with Frank Bongiorno this semester and Alex Cook over a couple of semesters.”

AJ is currently working on a research project about Australian Holocaust education in Australia and another on Jewry in the Weimar republic. While her projects are solo endeavours, she has felt far from isolated from her peers. She spoke about first year seminar, which she did with her fellow PhB students.

“Often, class discussions would kind of continue in the hallway after class until it was moved to the bar slowly,” she smiles. “We ended up with a really great community of PhB arts students.”

“We still have coffee together and talk about our projects. Having those friends from first year seminar has been really valuable.”
REGIONAL SPECIALISATIONS

In today’s globalised world, demand for regional expertise is greater than ever. With our specialised regional degrees, you will immerse yourself in the politics, history, culture, language, economics, and religion of one of the world’s key regions and graduate as an expert in your field. The College is home to three world-renowned centres for regional specialisation: the Centre for Arab and Islamic Studies, the Centre for European Studies, and the Australian Centre for Latin American Studies.

Bachelor of European Studies

Can you see yourself bustling to work through the streets of Paris, Glasgow, Munich, London, Madrid or Rome? If you are interested in the social, political and cultural structure of contemporary Europe, this program is for you.

The Bachelor of European Studies focuses on the foundations of modern Europe, bearing in mind its long history and how this has shaped contemporary European societies. It also considers the innovative aspects of recent developments, particularly the possibilities for cooperation and unity as well as the tensions between diverse traditions.

You can also study a European language and travel to Europe for ‘in-country’ study at a partner institution. With our flexible program you can extend your chosen language subject into a major.

Majors
Contemporary Europe, European History

Minors
Advanced French Studies, Advanced German Studies, Advanced Italian Studies, Advanced Spanish Studies, French Language and Culture, German Language and Culture, Italian Language and Culture, Russian, Spanish

Career opportunities
Graduates may find work in policy development, government, private business, foreign affairs, tourism, trade, and many other fields.

Bachelor of Latin American Studies

From the secret language of tango dancers to the intricacies of political change in Cuba, this degree will fly you to Latin America (quite literally, and probably in your fifth semester of study). Latin America’s history is a collision of culture and politics, wealth and poverty. In this course you will study a history of corruption, colonisation and celebration.

Off the back of its traumatic history, Latin America is growing economically at breakneck speed and in this course you will move along with it. You will critically analyse aspects of society, politics, culture, history, economics and development. You will also learn the Spanish language and undertake one semester of study abroad in a Latin American country. For aspiring comerciantes and cultural buffs alike, our degree immerses you in a region of extremes.

Major
Latin American Studies

Minor
Spanish

Career opportunities
Graduates may find work in policy development, government, private business, tourism, trade, foreign affairs and may other fields.
Immerse yourself in a remarkable and complex part of the world. The history, society, politics and culture of the Middle East and Central Asia influence many parts of the world, including Australia. The Middle Eastern and Central Asian regions of the world are rich in history, geographical wonders, political turmoil, and socio-cultural influence. They are areas of constant domestic and international interest as events often unfold which have global relevance and significance. This program will take you through the topics, debates and developments in the Middle East or Central Asia. You will study the socio-cultural, political, historical and economic structures of these regions and develop a comprehensive knowledge of their relationship to global sociocultural, political and economic trends. To fully engage with the history and culture of the regions, you can also study a Middle Eastern or Central Asian language.
SOCIAL SCIENCES

A degree in the social sciences will expand your perspective on a broad range of complex social issues. Look to the past in your history classes, bring the theory of politics to life in Australia’s political heartland, confront the big issues facing the world in sociology, get diplomatic in international relations, examine deviant minds in criminology, or question the very fundamentals of human existence in philosophy.

Bachelor of Criminology

| ATAR: 80 | Duration: 3 years | CRICOS Code: 078937F |

Do you want to delve into an enthralling field that deals with the complexities of crime and responses to crime? Our program addresses the causes, politics and management of different forms of criminality from a range of disciplinary perspectives.

You will develop an understanding of a range of issues in contemporary criminology including definitions and representations of crime, victimisation, policing, the criminal justice system, transnational crime and terrorism, and restorative justice.

The Bachelor of Criminology draws attention to the social dimensions of crime and assesses the effectiveness and implications of crime control measures.

Program structure
Refer to Programs and Courses for the listing of core courses to be studied as part of this degree: programsandcourses.anu.edu.au

Career opportunities
Graduates will be prepared for opportunities in the criminal justice and other social services sectors. Our focus on research-led teaching uniquely prepares students for employment in criminological research and policy roles, such as with law enforcement, probation and parole, child protection, crime analysis, courts and justice services, and other regulatory agencies.

Bachelor of Environmental Studies

| ATAR: 80 | Duration: 3 years | CRICOS Code: 074008B |

Do you want to understand the environment, how we can interact with it and learn about more sustainable ways of managing it? This is the degree to help you manage and care for our most precious resources.

The ANU Bachelor of Environmental Studies is designed to give you the multidisciplinary perspectives, skills and knowledge you need to engage meaningfully with the complex problems facing societies and the environment.

Our degree offers a broad range of study options from natural ecological and earth system processes, to environmental management, resource use and policy, to cultural ecology and the history of environmental change, perception and philosophy. You will develop an understanding of the complex and often conflicting interrelationships between human societies and their environment, and of the available solutions to address the world’s most intractable environmental problems.

Major
Environmental Studies

Minors
In addition to a major, you will also complete two minors from the following list: Biological Anthropology, Development Studies, Environmental Policy, Geography, Human Ecology, Sustainable Development

Career opportunities
Graduates may find work in government, policy, scientific research, development and aid organisations, multi-national companies, mining and many other fields.
Bachelor of International Relations

ATAR: 89  |  Duration: 3 years  |  CRICOS Code: 073992F

Can you see yourself jet-setting the globe with a career in trade, foreign affairs, journalism, international business or research?

ANU is ranked 8 in the world for Politics and International Relations (QS World University Rankings by Subject 2016). Our program will introduce you to International Relations, initially via the broad historical and intellectual framework which has framed the modern world since the 17th century. It will then concentrate on the 20th century, the age of World Wars and the Cold War, before addressing contemporary issues, the age of global political economy, global culture and communication, global environmental concerns and post-Cold War political conflict, including the War on Terror.

With our flexible program you can extend your chosen language subject into a major, and have the opportunity to go on exchange or an international/national internship through the Australian National Internships Program (ANIP).

Bachelor of Political Science

The Bachelor of Political Science is the only dedicated Political Science degree in Australia. ANU has some of the world’s finest political scientists, is ranked 1st in Australia and 8th in the world (QS World University Rankings by Subject 2016), and was the only Australian university to receive a 5 (‘well above world standard’) in all Excellence in Research for Australia (ERA) report. Located in the national capital, ANU is the only university with a right to place interns in Australian Parliament House.

The Bachelor of Political Science will give you the knowledge, theoretical understandings and practical skills that underpin a successful career that engages with politics. The comparative nature of courses means you will develop an understanding of different systems of government, using comparative methodology. You will examine political science theory, public opinion, political economy, government behaviour, systems, principles, and different methods and techniques of political science.

You will graduate with a degree that is globally recognised and attractive to employers, with well-developed skills in research, critical and conceptual thinking and problem-solving. You’ll also have the opportunity to complete an internship, undertaking a research project for academic credit through the Australian National Internships Program (ANIP).

Bachelor of Politics, Philosophy and Economics

The Bachelor of Politics, Philosophy and Economics is an elite degree that combines the study of politics, philosophy and economics, and the manner in which they are increasingly being integrated to enhance our understanding and evaluation of individual and group behaviour. Graduates of this degree will be recognised for exceptional critical and conceptual thinking and problem-solving skills. In politics, you will develop your understanding of the nature of institutional arrangements, the manner in which decisions are made and their effects on people throughout the world. The philosophy component of the degree will teach you to analyse issues and use ethical principles to evaluate human conduct and social institutions. By studying economics you will learn how consumers, firms, and governments make decisions and how these decisions determine the allocation of resources.

Our Integrative Seminar Series brings together the three disciplines to illuminate topics of pressing human concern. The degree has a strong international component linking with international relations and development studies and you may have the opportunity to engage with other leading international universities.
Students must have completed at least 96 units of the BPPE program with an average of 65% in order to commence the LAWS coded courses and must achieve an overall result of at least 65% across the whole BPPE program to transition to the Juris Doctor program.

You will be able to choose from a wide range of law electives, with opportunities to focus on research. Our lecturers and supervisors are experts in their fields, creating innovative courses in a unique campus environment.

Jessica

Bachelor of Politics, Philosophy and Economics/Bachelor of Laws (Hons)

“I first heard about the Oxford PPE and then I found out that ANU offers it as well. And I thought, that is perfect because I don’t have to move far from home, and Canberra is the political hub of Australia. In 2015, my involvement with the UN Society combined with the things I’d learnt in my degree meant that I represented ANU in South Korea as part of Model UN, an educational simulation of the real deal.”

She adds, “Choosing this degree was very much my own decision. And so was coming to the ANU. When you’re in high school you feel a bit controlled, and what I wanted with my university education was to have new experiences, to really embrace being young and take control of my own life.”
WHAT NEXT?

Honours

If you have done well in your Bachelor degree, you can consider adding an Honours year. This extra year of full-time study includes coursework, seminars and a research thesis focusing on one of your majors. To be eligible for Honours, you must have achieved a weighted mark of at least 70 per cent, calculated from 36 units of courses in your cognate major with the highest marks.

An Honours degree with a grade of at least 2nd class (2A) is the most direct pathway into a Doctor of Philosophy (PhD), and will help you get into other graduate degrees such as Master programs in the future.

The structure of Honours in each area varies but in all programs a designated weighting is allocated to both coursework and research thesis components. With some exceptions – notably in practice-based areas – courses commonly involve 24 units of advanced level coursework courses and a 50 per cent (18,000 – 20,000 words) or above weighted thesis.

Honours programs are comprised of 48 units and are normally taken over a two-semester period. With approval, Honours may be taken part-time over four semesters.

TOP 10 REASONS TO MOVE TO CANBERRA

There are lots of universities to choose from, but only one Australian National University. The ANU accommodation experience is renowned for being, fun, supportive, and inclusive.

We have put together the top 10 reasons to help you make that decision about moving to Canberra!

1. Accommodation Guarantee for first year interstate students!
At ANU, the Accommodation Guarantee is free to apply, and if you get an offer for academic study, you are guaranteed to live on campus in your first year if you apply by January 6, 2017.

2. Independence
A lot of students are trying to figure out who they are, let alone what they want to do. You will learn about yourself in ways that you wouldn’t get if you stayed home.

3. Living on campus ‘experience’
Canberra has been named in the top 20 Best Student Cities (2016 QS Best Student Cities ranking). Plus, the campus is located right next to the city centre with lots of wide open green spaces.

4. Friends for life
One of the things that we hear from students living on campus is how their social networks expand in a very short time. You are guaranteed to make friends for life!

5. ‘Canberra advantage’
If you are interested in languages, working overseas, politics, internships and more—Canberra is the perfect place to be!

You will have access to the major Australian cultural and collecting institutions and their archives for teaching, learning and research. The ANU School of Art teach at the National Gallery of Australia, and students can also undertake experience at other institutions such as, The National Archives, The Australian War Memorial, The National Museum of Australia, The National Library of Australia, The National Gallery of Australia, and The National Portrait Gallery.
6. Life experience
Get out of your comfort zone and learn key skills such as managing your time and money, and your cooking skills will be well developed if you live in self-catered accommodation. Plus living in the nation’s capital, you’ll grow as an individual and see a bit more of our beautiful country while you’re at it.

7. Get involved
ANU has a club or society to cater for every taste and preference. We have everything from Harry Potter, to Chocolate, and Kanye West Appreciation Societies. Like playing sport and being active? We’ve got you covered for that offering a fully equipped on campus gym, running tracks and an abundance of bike paths.

8. Your dream course
With a huge range of degrees, as well as the opportunity to study a Flexible Double Degree, you’ll find your perfect fit at ANU. You can build your own unique program through our Compare and Create tool on the Programs and Courses website.

9. Take the stress out of living away from home
You won’t have to find a place to live—we’ll find it for you. Plus if you live in a catered option we’ll do the cooking for you. We have fantastic facilities including study/meeting spaces, movie rooms, soundproof music practice rooms, and in some cases a rooftop garden and free secure bike storage.

10. Live in the heart of the City Centre
Our location on 145 hectares of beautifully maintained parklands right in the Canberra city centre, is central to everything. With over 5,000 beds on campus (more to come!), it’s easy to join this welcoming community of students right in the heart of the city.

Why wait? We look forward to welcoming you home to ANU. Make ANU your first preference for study in 2017 and apply now to live on ANU campus.
